Our Youth—Our Future

During the 42 years The Tree of Peace Friendship Centre has been in existence, we have had some form of youth programming. CCAY's current program was evaluated by the Youth Advisory Committee (YAC) and it was their consensus that life skills, health, wellness, personal development and cultural programming be the main focus of the program.

We are well aware that today's youth are faced with numerous social issues. Alcohol, drugs, smoking, solvent abuse, crime, violence, STI's, suicide, homelessness and peer pressure are only a few of the many issues they are confronted with.

Our project will endeavour to assist youth in recognizing and addressing some of the above mentioned issues and at the same time, provide them with the necessary tools to live healthy lifestyle choices (addictions, prevention, education, awareness, counselling and referral) and facilitating workshops on personal growth and development.

Life skills will help adolescents translate their knowledge, attitudes and values into healthy behaviours, such as acquiring the ability to make healthy choices and adopt healthy behaviour that will improve their lives in general.

Mission Statement

To improve the quality of life for aboriginal people in the community of Yellowknife and surrounding areas by facilitating self-determined, social, health, education, economic and cultural activities which respect the aboriginal people's cultural distinctiveness.

Mandate

- The encouragement of cross-cultural understanding and awareness between Dene/Metis/Inuvialuit and non-aboriginals.
- To support and assist the development of individual learning, community groups, training programs, education courses, alcohol and drug awareness and recreational/cultural programs.
- To encourage self-reliance, independence and responsibility through programs in response to community needs.
- To develop leadership within the community.
